IN THE LATEST issue of Leading Light, a Shanghai weekly devoted to shipping, attention is drawn to the circular issued by the harbor-master of Hongkong warning shipmasters against the practice of engaging and discharging seamen elsewhere than at the Mercantile Marine Office, and stating that, for the future, the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Ordinances will be strictly enforced. The editor points out that Chinese crews are engaged and discharged through the native boatwain, and that to enforce an order made under the British Merchant Shipping Act, that is wholly inapplicable to local conditions, would result in endless mischief. The order at present seems to cut one way only. The shipmaster transgresses if he departs from the order laid down as above; but would the harbor authorities of Hongkong be prepared to hunt down and punish a deserting native seaman?

THE FASTEST run that has been made in a long time by a sailing vessel from Yokohama to San Francisco belongs to the bark Calcutta, Captain Davies, which arrived recently only thirty-one days out from Japan. The windjammer had fine weather the entire passage. Captain Davies reported that he was favored with west and southwest winds all the way across the Pacific. The Calcutta carried a cargo of oil to the Orient for the Standard Oil Company, and returns in ballast.

AWAITING the completion of his crew, Captain Harris, master of the American three masted ship W. F. Babcock went out side the harbor limits this morning and dropped anchor. The Babcock has had a new rudder stock fitted during her ten days' stay at the port. It is expected that the men required to man the ship will be rounded up today and the windjammer can then proceed to Cape Town, South Africa, to which port her shipment of lumber is destined.

THE NIPPON YUSEN Kaisha will in the near future construct two liners for the European run—one having an aggregate tonnage of 8,500, and the other 10,000. The company will also build two liners for the American run—one of 8000 tons and the other 9000 tons. It is stated that in April the company will dispatch officials to Europe and America in connection with the new undertaking.

WITH BUT four hundred and fifty tons of general cargo from Oriental ports, the Japanese liner Nippon Maru is expected to arrive at this port at noon tomorrow. The vessel comes from Hongkong and Japan ports and it is the intention of H. Hackfeld & Co., the local agents, to dock the vessel at Alakea street wharf. The Nippon Maru will be given a prompt dispatch to San Francisco and will carry the Honolulu mail.

WATERFRONT NOTES

THE gigantic combination known as the International Shipping Federation, a body representing more than 16,000,000 tons of shipping, came formally into being on January 1, and will at once commence operations. The following countries are represented in the federation: Great Britain, Germany, Belgium, Holland, Denmark and Sweden. The chief offices of the federation are in London, and its operations will be governed by a general council composed of representatives of each of the affiliated federations. "Our aims," said Cuthbert Laws, the general manager of the new body, "are defensive. We shall resist unreasonable attacks whether by trade unions or others upon the shipowners' freedom of contract in the employment of labor." The support which the federation will give its members will take the form of supplying labor to work their vessels during strikes or of indemnifying those who suffer as a consequence of unfair attacks made upon them.

A meeting of the city and county supervisors was called for last night to consider matters of important legislation, chief of which was the final passage of the Logan ordinance amending and extending the fire limits of the city of Honolulu.

This regulation had been introduced the first part of the month, and at last Tuesday evening's meeting had passed a second reading by the half-hearted support of several members of the board.

Attorney Charles Achi, who declared that he represented a hui of Chinese who either owned tenement firetraps or expected to possess such flimsy structures in the near future, made an impassioned appeal to the board that they postpone action until such time as the Legislature convenes.

Achi employed all the wiles at his command. He made a tearful presentation of his case, wherein he attempted to show that the passing of the ordinance extending the fire limits would work a serious hardship upon a large number of poor citizens and property-owners. The paid attorney for the firetrap owners wound up by insinuating in language that was plain as it was unmistakable, that an election of city and county officers was coming along next November.

Achi's remarks simply conveyed the impression that the supervisor who championed the extension of the existing fire limits had himself opened to being completely snowed under when the battle of the ballots was raging.

From Achi's talk before the board the inference was quickly drawn that he could command the tenement-house vote at the next election.

Mayor Fern Supervisors Logan, Quinn and McCallan were the only representatives of the dear "people" present last night. These waited until after 8 o'clock and finally took an adjournment until 7:30 on Monday evening, at which time another meeting has been called and Clerk Kakuokalani has been instructed to issue a call to each member "commanding" their presence at the meeting.

It is well known that Member Achi is opposed to the measure on general principles. He voted "no" at its introduction, though he had never inquired into its provisions.

Kane, while voting for the ordinance at the first and second readings, apparently did so with considerable reluctance. He first offered objections to some provisions incorporated in the new law and in one instance Logan and the majority members of the board made an important concession.

Aylott objected to practically every one of the six sections in the bill but cast a reluctant vote at the two readings.

Cox is the only member of the board who lives outside the city and in his absence there is a reasonable supposition that he was unable to leave his duties at Waiheia and make a trip into Honolulu. Cox has offered no opposition to the measure thus far.

The vessel lies at the foot of Fort street, and this morning divers went down and inspected the hull for seams.
